The Milwaukee Chapter of the American Guild of Organists along with All Saints Cathedral and Summerfield United Methodist Church, Milwaukee, are pleased to present the third annual Pedals, Pipes & Pizza program to introduce pianists 11-16 years of age to the organ. Encourage your young musicians to attend!

Students will have the opportunity to hear “spirited” music, find out about how the organ works along with visiting the organ chamber (and possibly find bats in the belfry!), play a piece that they know on the organ and enjoy yummy pizza all while meeting some new friends with an eerily shared interest in music!

The Pedals, Pipes & Pizza program will be held at All Saints Cathedral and Summerfield United Methodist Church, Milwaukee, on Saturday, October 31st, 2015, from 10:30 AM-2:30 PM. Please encourage students to attend this exciting introduction to the organ. Further information and a registration form may be obtained from the AGO website, www.agomilwaukee.org.

Thank you for the support and encouragement of our young musicians. Your influence in developing interest in the organ for the young musicians of our future is greatly appreciated!

St. John’s Lutheran Church in Stonebank is looking to hire a pianist or pianist/organist who is also a skilled accompanist to play for weekly Sunday morning worship starting immediately. This player should also be available for occasional weekday evening music rehearsals. We are a small ELCA church just a few miles northeast of Oconomowoc. We have just called a new pastor and we are looking to refresh our worship. Joyful musicians may call our church office on weekday mornings at 414-630-0689.
The Great Lakes Regional Convention - Indianapolis, Part 2

Starting Monday Morning at 9am we went right to work. The choices were: a workshop on the SPC exam, a workshop on Global Music, a Choral Reading Session, and a masterclass with David Higgs. I chose the masterclass primarily for Mr. Higgs stellar reputation as a teacher and was not disappointed. Engaging and erudite, he addressed the almost-full Christ Church Cathedral using a microphone and standing at the edge of the console of the Wolff instrument in the chancel. The first performer was named Mitch Miller (really!) and he did a confident reading of Mendelssohn’s Sonata 3 in a-minor, Op. 65 No. 3. Mr. Higgs had a great deal to teach us about Mendelssohn’s music and did so in an entertaining and non-threatening way. The gist of the message was that from the very first publication, editors messed-up Mendelssohn’s phrase-marks because they found them too unconventional and modern research has uncovered Mendelssohn’s true intentions regarding the slurs and other phrase-marks. Mr. Higgs gave examples and Mr. Miller incorporated then into his reading of the piece. If one were performing Mendelssohn frequently, it would likely be worthwhile to invest in a new urtext edition (but if, like me, you only play one of those quiet ending-movements once a year, probably not.) Unfortunately, I did not record the name of the second performer. He played a work of the late Calvin Hampton with which I was not familiar. It seems Mr. Higgs actually played the premier of the piece under the tutelage of the composer and actually knew about the changes which had been made in the score including an alternate ending different from the published edition. This was fascinating as a piece of first-hand musical history and I’m sure the student got a great deal from it. The audience, probably, less so, but it was still interesting. I would attend a masterclass by David Higgs any time.

The masterclass was followed immediately by a recital by James David Christie on the magnificent Taylor & Boody instrument for which the cathedral built the west gallery on which it stands. I had been waiting impatiently to hear this instrument having attended 3 events at the Cathedral and still not hear a note from this instrument. It was well-worth the wait. Christie put the instrument thru its paces with a program of Böhm (Praeludium in D,) an anonymous Dutch manuscript via Camphuysen (Daphne — 3 variations,) Buxtehude (Te Deum, BuxWV 218,) Krebs (Chorale Prelude (Zeuoh ein zu deinen Toren,) and J.S. Bach’s “Partite Diverse sopra “Sei gegrüßet Jesu gütig”, BWV 768 (one of my all-time favorites.) This artist and this instrument were a match made in musical heaven and the organ brought to life the music in a way seldom heard, meeting all the artist’s demands. This was a splendid performance all-around and received a well-deserved ovation.

We were then bussed to Trinity Episcopal Church, a very Normanesque building with a squat and quite formidable tower. The interior of the church was decorated in a strict medieval style in keeping with the architecture and felt very authentic and majestic. The organ was a 1983 Schantz with some newer work (2011) and a new console from Goulding & Wood, and placed in open chambers on one side of the chancel. The console was moved to the center for the program. This was the recital of the winner of the RCYO competition and the building was packed. I ended-up in a side-aisle shoved-up against a grand piano (one of the few non-medieval elements in the room) and never actually got my hands on a program. Apparently the crowd was greater than expected. The winner of the RCYO was Madeleine X Woodworth, a freshman at Eastman, where she studies with Nathan Laube. One did not need a program to know that we were hearing a masterful performance from such a young artist. She, also, got an ovation.
We were then bussed to Christian Theological Seminary (Disciples of Christ) — Sweeney Chapel for a hymn Festival, “In God’s Time.” The festival was led by: The Rev. Robert Schilling, Officiant, Dr. Paul Thomas, Reader, Ryan Brunkhurst, Organist (Organist and Director of Music at Episcopal Church of the Nativity) and a bevy of uncredited musicians including a string quartet, drums, recorder, and a few more I can’t recall.

As we entered each was handed an octavo of Alice Parker’s arrangement of “I Will Arise and Go to Jesus” and we did a very short rehearsal (pretty-much unneeded except to point out phrasing and dynamics). Then followed a very moving alternation of readings: Patricia B. Clark, the Reform Jewish Prayer book, John, Lucille Clifton, Merritt Malloy, Christianna Rosetti, George Herbert, Acts, and Maya Angelou, interspersed with a remarkable selection of hymns (mostly early American or contemporary global music). Sweeney Chapel is a breathtaking room with an impossibly high ceiling and perfect acoustics. It houses Holtkamp Op 1919 or 1987. (What a sound it made in the space!) The readings and hymns moved us thru the cycle from creation to resurrection and I, personally, found it very moving. Near the end the congregation all sang the anthem (I Will Arise…) and the effect was hair-raising — in a good way. We were seated for a rousing Postlude of “Prelude and Fugue in B-Major Op. 7 No. 1 — Marcel Dupré.

After supper on our own we were bussed to the Warren Performing Arts Center for something completely different; a Theatre Organ program by Mark Herman. This is an unexpected venue for a fine Barton Theatre Organ. Warren Performing Arts Center is a high-school auditorium seating 1200 built in 1983 to serve the cultural interests of both the school and the east side of Indianapolis. In the early 1990s the Central Indiana Chapter of the American Theatre Organ Society acquired and installed the 3/18 original 1928 Barton from the (downtown) Indiana Theatre and installed it on either side of the stage in this auditorium. The chapter retains ownership and stewardship of the instrument and is engaged in a long-term lease of the organ to the Warren Township School System with the Chapter insuring and maintaining it at no cost to the school. In return, the chapter gets to use the auditorium and organ. What a wonderful arrangement! While not the largest in the Midwest, this Barton is certainly one of the best-sounding and most meticulously cared-for instruments I have ever experienced (excluding some in private ownership.) It is almost entirely intact but a Barton oboe was added replacing a synthetic stop.

Mark Herman gave a rousing and virtuoso performance, showing-off the organs many effects and ear-tickling sounds. He is to be ranked among the very best of theatre-organists concertizing today and he is only 28. His program included accompanying the silent film “Neighbors” with Buster Keaton (1920) and a cornucopia of standards and some off-the-beaten-path selections (Shostakovich on a theatre organ) (including one of his own compositions). His program was thoroughly enjoyable and we all left the auditorium impressed and uplifted. I had the pleasure of sharing a seat in the coach on the way back from Bloomington the next day and found Mr. Herman to be as engaging a conversationalist as he was an organist. What a pleasure!

We adjourned to the exhibits area where we were provided with a large selection of Hors d’ Oeuvres and a cash bar. We made merry and many folks did so way past my curfew. (To be continued...)
